Empirical method for calculation properties of organic substances and chemical similarity recognition

Yu. E. ZEVATSKII, D. V. SAMOILOV
St. Petersburg State Technological Institute (Technical University)
Department of Analytical Chemistry, St Petersburg 198026, Russia

Abstract
Empirical method for pK(a) prediction based on LFER, experimental solvent properties and atomic contributions shows good accuracy and universality. Values of involved empirical parameters make possible to discriminate organic acids by type of the protonation centre.

Keywords: Empirical method; Atomic contributions; pK(a); Properties estimation; Chemical similarity

References
3. JANTSCHI L. Results from the use of molecular descriptors family on structure property/activity relationships. International Journal of Molecular Sciences 8:189 2007
5. JUN H. J PHYS CHEM A 110:257 2006
8. LIPTAK MD. Absolute pK(a) determinations for substituted phenols. Journal of the American Chemical Society 124:6421 2002
15. YU E. RUSSIAN J APPL CHEM 79:967 2006
17. YU E. RUSSIAN J O IN PRESS 44: 2008
18. YU E. RUSSIAN J ORGANIC CH 44:52 2008